CAIRO, Dec. 5.—With hits reported on an Italian battleship and two cruisers of Premier Mussolini's fast-dwelling fleet, United States consolidated B-24 (Liberator) bombers carried out their first major attack against the Italian mainland yesterday, an official announcement disclosed today.

The attack was directed against Naples, Italy's greatest naval port and harbor in the Mediterranean.

CAIRO, Dec. 5.—Allied bombers from the Middle East bombed Naples in a daylight raid Friday, directing their attack at docks and other targets, a communique reported today. The Allied raiders were heavy bombers and attacked "in force" the communique stated.

All returned safely to their bases. The communique did not disclose the location of the Allied base from which the attack was made, nor mention the type of bombers involved.

If the flight was made from the nearest point in Libya, the Cyrenaican hump, it involved a round-trip flight of approximately 1,400 miles.

Lots of New Castle people would like to see the weather return to what it was a year ago on this date, when the mercury rose to 72 and was followed by a day with a high temperature of 68. However, it didn't last long, as those kind of days generally don't at this time of the year, and colder weather followed, but not as snappy as this week's.

Numerous special programs have been arranged in New Castle and vicinity on Monday, the first anniversary of the cowardly sneak attack upon Pearl Harbor by the Japanese.

Citizens of New Castle and the rest of Lawrence county, remembering Pearl Harbor, will gather in the Cathedral auditorium Monday morning at 9:30 to formally launch Lawrence county's whirlwind drive to sell $5,400,000 worth of government securities—the nation's goal is nine billion—before Christmas.

Stores will be closed, of course, as on all Monday mornings, and leaders of the campaign anticipate an unusually large audience.

Most of the United War Fund campaigners, just released from the annual city campaign that smashed all solicitation records, expect to be in attendance to take up their new drive assignments.

Divisions of the United War Fund drive are being reorganized and re-

Uncle Sam hopes his people will buy nine billion dollars worth of the newly created securities before Christmas day rolls 'round. He has given the county the $5,400,000 quota.

Boom Boak For Post In New State Cabinet

County Grange leaders and leading farmers today were booming J. Audley Boak, of Slippery Rock township, former master of the Pennsylvania State Grange, for appointment as the next state secretary of agriculture.

The movement, advancing like a rolling snowball, was brought to the attention of the Lawrence County Pomona Grange, governing Grange body of the county, when it convened today in the Mahoning Valley Grange hall.

Newspapers in Harrisburg, it was learned here, spoke of the fact that Governor-elect Edward G. Martin might well name a western farm leader to the cabinet post inasmuch as the past two secretaries have been from the eastern end of the state.

The move for Mr. Boak will be carried before the 70th annual convention of the Pennsylvania State Grange, in Harrisburg December 8, 9 and 10, the local supporters said. County leaders pointed to Mr. Boak's long service in the agricultural industry. He himself is a farmer, maintaining, with his two sons, in Slippery Rock township, a 200-acre farm which has produced record apple crops and excellent herds of Jersey cattle and Chester White hogs.

His service as master of the State Grange took him all over Pennsylvania, and his committee activity for the National Grange has given him prominence among agricultural leaders of the nation.

Mr. Boak at present is president of the Pennsylvania Wheat Growers association. He is a Pennsylvania Master Farmer, and is vice president of that organization. He is also a trustee of Pennsylvania State college.

Expect New Attack On Guadalcanal

U. S. Forces Are Ready For Move Over New Post

Japanese Have Been Unable To Land Reinforcements Or Supplies Recently

NO CONCENTRATIONS OF JAPS SIGHTED

By JOSEPH A. BORS
(U. S. Staff Correspondent)
WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—While U. S. ground troops on Guadalcanal continued to mop up advance Japanese patrols, American sea and air forces today prepared for "round four" of the four-month-old Solomon campaign.

This was intimated by Secretary of the Navy Knox, when he declared that American naval forces are operating on the assumption that the Japanese "will come back as long as they can."

The fact that the Japs have been unable to land reinforcements or supplies for about three weeks led Navy men to assume that the enemy soon would make another desperate attempt to get food and ammunition to his Guadalcanal garrison.

No Concentration Seen

Although Knox at a press conference said that reconnaissance has failed to disclose any huge concentration of Jap ships in the northern Solomons, some sources asserted the next Nipponese thrust might come directly from their huge Pacific base at Truk.

A change in enemy tactics has been anticipated ever since the Japs suffered a crippling sea-air defeat off Guadalcanal November 13-15. This sea borne thrust was launched from bases in the northern Solomons and New Britain.

Naval sources in Washington failed to show signs of elation over the November 30-December 1 night naval victory, presumably because it was a small scale enemy attempt to reinforce its troops on Guadalcanal.

The feeling prevailed that this recent thrust might be the forerunner of another major attempt to oust Americans from the past, such as the full-scale assaults.

ily and the Axis seaplane base on the island port of Syracuse, the communiqué reported.

Torpedo planes caught two Axis merchant ships off the Libyan port of Tripoli, destroying one and seriously damaging the other.

Routine patrol flights were carried out over forward areas in Libya. West of the Axis positions near El Aghelia, but activity was not on a large scale, said the communiqué.

Medium bombers attacked the enemy landing field at Marblehead in the El Aghelia area.

A communiqué issued by Major General Lewis H. Brereton, commander of United States army air forces in the Middle East said:

"Heavy B-24's made the first attack in history by Americans on Italy proper yesterday when they struck at shipping and railroad installations at Naples."

Excellent results were observed among ships moored at Porta Di-massa Quay and on the Quay itself, resulting in explosions and huge fires.

"Other hits were scored on the Angio-mole which caused fires and great clouds of black and grey smoke."

A large ship moored on the northeast side of the Mole received a direct hit. Two cruisers were seen hit directly, with near misses on two other vessels.

The crew calmly made their way up on deck, and abandoned ship. Some of the men jumped into the water, but he went down a rope to a landing boat in safety, and made his way ashore in that manner. They stayed ashore over night, after which they were taken to another ship and after spending the days in the African waters, returned to the United States. There was no panic among the men, who followed out the routine they had been drilled in for just such an emergency.

Albert has been in the coast guard since October, 1941, and states that the coast guard is doing a real job in the war, their job being to land most of the troops which occupy enemy territory.

The Hewes was formerly a passenger liner plying between this country and Europe, and brought some of the last Americans home from the war zone before hostilities started.

Members of Albert's family spent some anxious moments when they saw the announcement by the navy department that the Hewes had been sunk, as they knew he was a member of the crew on this boat, and were overjoyed when he arrived home.

Tebourba area. Advance troops of the first army. Reuters continued, were holding fast but in some places were being squeezed out. German tank attacks always were preceded by heavy down bombings by formations of Stukas, the dispatch concluded.

The German high command's claim to have taken Djedida and Tebourba is in keeping with Axis propaganda psychology. It was pointed out. There is no reason to believe that Germany's communications with North Africa are any better than those of Britain, and Berlin naturally would seize upon any even slight important victory to offset the speedy liberation of Morocco and Algeria and the defeat administered to Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's Afrika Korps.

Battle For Supplies

It is authoritatively apparent that the battle for Bizerte and Tunis is developing into a struggle for supplies. Under such conditions there naturally must be considerable delay until the Allies can build up a strong striking force.

British advanced troops have outstripped their air umbrella, but there is no suggestion that there are not enough Allied aircraft; simply not enough prepared landing grounds from which they can operate.

A grim struggle undoubtedly lies ahead. The first army hardly can be expected to launch a final attack on Tunis and Bizerte until advanced airmen are ready. Meanwhile they are putting up a magnificent fight.

A communiqué from North Africa disclosed the consolidating tactics in the Tebourba area with earlier dispatches from the battlefield.

Fighting still was going on around Materu, 22 miles southwest of the naval base of Bizerte.

There was a continuance of intense aerial activity that this type of enemy opposition, along with strong ground opposition, was to be expected.

It was pointed out that the Allied advance into Tunisia has carried beyond the "fringe" of the protective air umbrella provided by Allied fighters which for the present are operating from small-sized bases.

A commentator on the British radio emphasized this phase of the fighting to push the Axis from Africa.

The enemy, for the time being, does have air superiority but it does not mean that the Axis has air supremacy, the commentator said.

From the military writer of the London Daily Express came the estimate that the Germans probably were using 600 aircraft which were operating from bases in a triangle made with Sicily, Bizerte and Tunis.

Allied fighter planes kept up their offensive forays along the coastal areas between Tunis and Gabes, while carrying out heavy and slashing bombing attacks against Axis air bases. The strategy in attacking the enemy bases was clear.

Need Fighter Support

The British first army, under Gen. K. A. N. Anderson, lacks fighter support and by raiding Axis air bases, the Allied planes are easing the handicap under which the ground forces are fighting.

The intensity of the sky warfare was disclosed in a communiqué which reported that in the space of three days, 13 enemy planes were destroyed while eight Allied aircraft were lost.

Meantime, the Morocco radio broadcast a French communiqué revealing that French troops, in co-operation with an Allied contingent, captured a hundred prisoners when they stormed an important enemy position east of Sidi Bou-Said.

Most of the prisoners taken in the successful action at Sidi Bou-Said, the location of a lighthouse commanding the gulf of Tunis, Cape Bizerte and Cap Blanc, were Germans.

Several enemy patrols were put to flight when a French reconnaissance unit ran into the units between Gafsa and Gafsa, about 110 miles to the northwest.

"The CBS correspondent in Algiers said the Allied troops were American paratroopers 'fighting like untrained cavalry as infantry' and were supported by French artillery. Our casualties were 'fairly heavy'."

The correspondent said, "The action 'showed the enemy that we are not leaving the air'."

Both the Allied and enemy tank forces, meantime, appeared to be re-grouping, reforming and repairing their lumbering land battle-ships after a heavy two-day battle near Tebourba in which it was acknowledged that both sides were hard hit. The Germans followed their customary procedure of claiming huge losses inflicted on the Allies.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—A Tokyo radio commentator warned Japanese listeners today that the second year of the war will be a test to see whether we are prepared or not to meet what is in store for us."

American air raids on Tokyo and other Japanese cities are to be expected, the commentator asserted, and added:

"We must further steel ourselves to meet everything and anything."

transport planes with supplies of ammunition, complex gun crews and detachments of mechanics to assemble them.

Carried Tractors Also

The Flying Fortress bombers which carried through this unique military transport job, also carried for each howitzer, a small powerful tractor that hauls it from point to point.

Never before in combat warfare had such heavy guns been transported so far by plane, and the feat ported the Allied forces in a most favorable position, it was said at Allied headquarters, to blast the remaining enemy positions on the Gona-Buna stronghold.

The guns are powerful 105-millimeter howitzers and can throw highly destructive shell five miles with uncanny accuracy.

With the aid of the new powerful artillery barrage Allied ground forces were speeding up the work of cleaning out isolated pockets of enemy resistance. Allied headquarters confirmed the report that the bodies of more than 400 Japanese had been found in areas recently captured by American and Australian jungle fighters.

Drop Bundles From Air

Balked in their efforts to land supplies from the sea, the Japanese have resorted to dropping bundles from the air. At least 100 parcels were chucked near the Buna mission by a squadron of nine cargo planes, protected by an escort of 14 Zero fighters.

Australian forces driving south along the beach from Gona are mopping up scattered Japanese positions in the area, and in the Sananda sector the enemy forces have been pressed back so close to the beach that in some places they have control of a bare 200 yards of the narrowing coastal strip.

Allied planes, including fighters, attack-bombers and heavy bombers continued their pounding of enemy positions. At least 40 Japanese troops were believed to have been drowned when two barges were bombed along the coast. Apparently enemy forces are being transferred from abandoned positions to points more strongly held in an effort to prolong the fighting.

Big American B-29 Flying Fortress bombers continued damaging raids on nearby enemy bases, smashing at Lae and Salamaua in New Guinea in two heavy attacks on airfields, dispersal areas and supply dumps. Both bases were heavily damaged by a hail of 500-pound bombs.

communiqué accounted for 2,000 enemy dead, making a total of more than 12,000 Germans killed in battle during the past four days.

The defenders of Stalingrad hampered at enemy positions within the city while the columns striking north and south of the city made continued progress after occupying a number of fortified villages.

Toward Smolensk

The Soviet drive westward from Rzhev in the general direction of Smolensk continued unchecked despite strong enemy counter attacks in a desperate effort to protect their supply lines.

The communiqué listed 600 slain in Stalingrad, 300 northwest of the city, 1,200 on the southwest and 1,000 west of Rzhev.

"Our troops continued their offensives in the Stalingrad area and on the central front in the same directions as before," the communiqué stated.

"In the Stalingrad area several attacks wiped out 35 enemy blockhouses and strongpoints and killed 800 enemy troops. On another Stalingrad sector our artillery destroyed a number of German mortar and gun emplacements."

"Northwest of Stalingrad on the left bank of the Don within the Don elbow, one of our units pressed through enemy strongpoints and pill-boxes, killing 300. Enemy attacks were repelled on another sector of this front."

Offensive Continues

"To the southwest of Stalingrad the Soviet offensive continued. In the capture of several enemy fortifications, 1,200 of their troops were killed and much booty captured."

"West of Rzhev our forces overcame enemy resistance and continued to repel all counter-attacks. In a fierce battle for a fortified position our troops killed 1,100 of the enemy and took much booty."

The midnight communiqué told of onrushing Soviet columns throwing the Nazi invaders out of a dozen more villages on the Stalingrad and Moscow fronts.

Recaptured villages in the Stalingrad area, most of them heavily fortified, included Vafku, Babinsky, Lyshinsky, Popov, Chirsky, Terun, Deyev, Parshin and the railway station at Derzhavsk. Soviet units fought within Stalingrad proper also drove the enemy from several positions.

More than 500 Nazi dead were found in an area of a single block of buildings after the Russians had driven them from their gun positions in the ruined sector.

Russian forces driving northwest of Stalingrad, within the Don Bend, occupied several enemy positions in fighting which inflicted heavy casualties on the Germans.

On another undisclosed sector a Nazi tank unit was outflanked by a Soviet force which wiped out the whole Nazi group, killing 600.

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

PATIENCE AND TACT HELP STUTTERING CHILD

The following letter was received from an intelligent teacher in the lower grades, and I am giving it here because it is a subject of great interest to many people.

"Dear Dr. Myers:—As you will recall, you visited my classroom and asked me to send you the poem about the flag written by a little boy in my room. He was the boy who stuttered so badly and caused his parents so much anxiety because of this handicap.

Our Flag
"The colors of our Country's Flag
Are red, white and blue
To love and respect them
We must be citizens true.
Whenever you see the flag pass by
Always raise your hat up high."

Not An Easy Case
The teacher continues: "The case was not an easy one for me to handle. I had to be very tactful because, as my principal told me, the mother was sort of a problem and Dick was watched over closely by her. I felt part of his speech difficulty was self-part nerves. His mother was high-strung, and yet I think I was successful in dealing with her.

"This year Dick has written wonderful poems in the third grade. Different people have been amazed at the poems he wrote all the year. He reads well now. I read along with him last year because he had lost confidence in himself and stuttered badly. After I would start him off he could read right along.

"I taught his classmates to be kind, sympathetic and patient with him. Not once did they laugh during the year but they all helped him, and their class spirit was wonderful. I realized it was keeping his nerves calm in school, and helping him gain confidence that aided him in conquering his affliction.

Built Self-Confidence
"I had no control in his home, or over the children from other classrooms who laughed at him on the school grounds. He often came to me upset, but I told him he could do better work than they could, and too, he could write nice stories and poems; that if he could not get out some words he could do something that children in higher grades could do not.

"When you addressed the teachers of our city you answered questions. Dick's mother asked about his stuttering. You spoke so helpfully about it and said you had talked to a teacher in our school who was taking care of a stuttering case wisely. She knew what you meant. That encouraged me more than I can tell you, for I had worried so much about Dick. It has given me a lot of pleasure to see Dick gradually overcome his stuttering."

How fortunate it would be if every child who stutters at school had a teacher like the one who wrote this letter. Since the time I visited in that classroom I have written a special bulletin on the child who stutters to be had without cost by writing me, 234 East 45th Street, New York City, enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

Solving Parent Problems
Q. Please show me how to get my 4½ year-old daughter to tone down a bit. She just runs and runs and runs around. She seems very nervous. I am enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

A. I sent her my two bulletins, "Nervous Habits in the Child," and "The Nervous, Jittery Mother" to be had by any other reader in the same way.

One Man's Opinion

By WALTER KIERMAN

(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

We have heard of this proposition to feed half a billion people scattered around the world in our customary bouncy manner.

First, we were going to do it; second, we named a guy to do it; third, we wonder how it can be done.

Do we first take inventory? Do we figure our home needs, and the needs of our armed forces abroad and the needs of England and the other countries which we are already supplying with food? Do we figure out where we're going to get the extra ships and the extra crews to man them and the extra fuel to run them?

Of course not. We just shout "free dinner tonight" and hand Herbert Lehman the soup spoon and tell him "You serve it."

So if we run out of meat and potatoes before we've half started and incur considerable ill-will among our invited guests it's nothing accidental—we earned it.

The wise man counts his chickens before he advertises "Free chicken dinner."

Thought for the day: 130 millions to feed 500 millions.

Bible Thought For Today

Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven.—Matt. 5:16.

Words Of Wisdom

I never could believe that Providence has sent a few men into the world, ready booted and spurred to ride, and millions ready saddled and bridled to be ridden.—Richard Rumbold.

EVENT OF THE WEEK — MRS. NEWT SIMS FINALLY NAGGED NEWT INTO DOING SOMETHING ABOUT THAT LEAK IN THE ROOF

HINTS AND DINTS

Sun sets tonight 5:35. Sun rises tomorrow 8:07.

Very often we don't see very much, but we hear plenty.

Some king once said "My Kingdom for a Horse." Now some ordinary birds will say "My Automobile for a Horse."

Many executives fail because they are not willing to admit that their employees are as bright as they are—or brighter.

You are asked to buy bonds and not ordered to buy them. You will get your orders if Hitler wins this war.

It was her first trip to a large city, and little Janey was much interested in the tasteful window displays, finally she observed:

"Mother, isn't it funny that hats cost so much more than radios?"

But they don't, dear. What makes you think so?

"Well, a sign in a window back there said Hats, $10 up, and we just passed another window with a sign that says 'Radios, $10 down.'"

A young fellow, the son of quite a wealthy man, was engaged in some clerical capacity by a friend of his father in order to try to make something of him. However, he was shiftless to the last degree and nothing he said could be relied upon.

One day his employer called him into his private office and gave him a sound lecture. He dwelt chiefly on his pretivation, and wound up by saying, "You know, James, that you are always lying."

"Sir," said James, "I would have you remember that I am a gentleman!"

"There you go again," said his employer.

From our old friend, Page Turner, comes this "fact" story: In Sioux City, Iowa the ministerial association decided to join forces in raising funds for the erection of religious recreation center near the camp there. Committees from the Methodists, Baptists, Presbyterians, Episcopalians and Universalists started out to solicit funds. The publicity committee sent the news to the local paper and the editor asked it and wrote a hearing which read "Sects Appeal."

WOMEN'S HATS!
This afternoon I went with Miriam (in her late teens) to buy a hat, and she made her choice after viewing it on herself in a small mirror atop one of those dressing-table effects now scattered about the hat shops. As a result, Miriam, even with the aid of a hand-mirror, saw herself only down to her shoulder blades. After I had persuaded her to go to a full-length winged mirror showing her the full length of her front, profile and back, she reconsidered her decision, realizing that the hat she was trying on was out of proportion to her full silhouette and did not harmonize with her entire ensemble.

Girls profiting by this hint will learn why a plump figure requires moderate upturned hats with irregular lines in the brim, and rather high crowns; why a thin figure demands hats of average size with low crowns, and drooping brims, and why large waists and hips forbid small hats.

To quote Anita Colby, famous model, "The perfect complement to the girl with a photogenic face is a hat which serves as an outline like the frame of a picture. My best advice to the girl who wants to be a model, or to look like a model, is this: 'Wear hats to accentuate your best features. Through her hats a model—or any other woman—can achieve distinction and success.'

Question: Whose privilege is it to offer to shake hands when a man and a woman are introduced?

N. N. N.

Answer: When a man is introduced to a woman, it is her privilege to shake his hand or not as she pleases. He should wait for her to offer her hand to him, but if he extends his first, she should take it cordially. For her to ignore his gesture would be in very bad taste.

Be'tcha can't read this out loud: A man named Kohler once had a caller named Keller whose errand, to collect a bill, made Kohler hot under the collar. Keller, who was cooler than Kohler, insisted that the bill be paid. Whereupon Kohler, in a fit of choler, seized Keller by the collar, and with the rake of a killer, kicked his caller. When his choler became cooler, Kohler realized he might be lodged in the cooler; so he shipped on a boat which was a cooler and, without knowing whether he was traveling on his keel or his collar, he started for a climate which was cooler.

You don't hear much kicking from people who are making less than $25,000 a year about that new order in Washington about that matter.

'Tis strange, 'tis sad, this looking back and finding greatness true In one who as a youngster gay had walked and talked with you. But there it was—discovered now—and now the boy is dead— A captain—killed in action—so the brief dispatches said.

'Twill come again, this pang of grief, this shock of finding out How brave were they who once as boys we'd little thought about. We'll read their names and learn their fame and all their courage note

Then say: "I used to know the lad," and with a lumpy throat,

Military Class Might Take Over Germany
Overthrow Of Hitler Deemed Possibility
Militarists Never Strong For Nazi Party

By CHARLES P. STEWART

Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Fuehrer Hitler's overthrow by Germany's own professional military class is hinted at as a possibility in confidential reports from the Fatherland.

According to these accounts, the German militarists didn't like Nazism to begin with. They're an aristocratic group, and Nazism, regardless of its faults, isn't that. It's a dictatorship, but it's socialistic and plebeian. Adolf's own paper-hanging origin tells the story. He was no hereditary nabob, with a "von" in front of his name, which originally wasn't Hitler, either, but some weird Teutonic monicker like Schickelgruber that even official reference works don't profess to be very sure of.

However, besides being traditionally kaiseristic and nobility-worshipping the Germans always have had a decidedly radical socio-economic bunch likewise. It's been characteristic of maybe a mass majority of 'em.

Adolf, taking advantage of this sentiment, slid in, in the midst of a fearful national crisis, and the militarists had to make the best of it.

If, having started the war, he'd made satisfactory and reasonably rapid progress toward victory, the military gang would remain in line behind him, unquestionably. In fact, he did succeed in holding 'em in tow while he apparently was making a tolerably good showing.

If he hasn't met with actual reverses, though, at least his campaign's lagging.

Black Outlook

He isn't getting anywhere in Russia. He's in bad shape in North Africa. His showing at and under sea has fazzled out. His ally, Italy, is disintegrating. He's failed to catch Spain, as he'd hoped. Japan, except on its own account, doesn't care a hoot for him.

And, of course, everybody knows how he's hated in the countries he has overrun. France included.

Moving on, he hoped for sympathy, at worst, in Latin America.

The World and the Mud Puddles

A DIFFICULT SITUATION

The Japanese of the Pacific Coast, prior to their being placed in concentration camps, constituted a very large part of the farmers producing green goods upon that Coast, particularly in California, and these Japanese farmers were very good farmers. They were more like the old-fashioned farmers than are the modern farmers. They knew no hours; they worked not only from sun-up to sun-down, but by the aid of lanterns did much of their irrigation at night. These Japanese were not bound by any Union rules; they never did join a Union, and that fact probably marked them as being very undesirable citizens by California's very strong Labor Unions.

They grew not only all sorts of table fruits and vegetables; particularly strawberries and red raspberries and the ordinary run of vegetables, but they maintained stores in the cities, particularly of southern California. Every visitor to Los Angeles remembers the gorgeous display of fruits and vegetables in the open fronts of great stores on the boulevards of that city. Practically all of these Japanese owned stores have closed and those that are left are not so attractive; in fact, they are anything else but, and the coast cities are feeling the shortage of green goods.

Probably the great majority of the Japanese residents of California were not in sympathy with Japan's war. They had learned by experience that under the laws of this country they had advantages which they could not possibly retain under the rule of Japan. Many of them were native born citizens and very proud of their citizenship. But there is no use in crying over spilled milk. The military authorities of this nation believe it much wiser and at least much easier to concentrate the whole Japanese population of the West into camps where they know they will do no mischief, much easier than to rely on the F. B. I. to separate the sheep from the goats.

There are three great valleys in California, producing hitherto.

Give Him Time To Think

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5

IT IS interesting but not very aging that one of the qualities which made former Supreme Court Justice James F. Byrnes one of the best liked men in American public life, and which contributed more than anything else to his influence in the Senate, should now operate against the successful management of the great job he has undertaken as Director of Economic Stabilization.

THE REFERENCE is to his engaging personality, which coupled with a genuine liking for people, gave him a wider acquaintance and more friends than any other member of Congress who can now be recalled, with the exception of the late Nicholas Longworth, who was in a class by himself. But practically every body who knows "Jimmie" Byrnes likes him. Almost as good a storyteller as the late Admiral Cary T. Grayson, shrewd, able, companionable, one of the reasons for his extraordinary effectiveness as a Senator was his willingness to interest himself in the causes of his friends and his eagerness as well as his ability to help.

IT IS easy to understand how such a man would endeavor himself to his colleagues and why when the President drafted him for a position of such tremendous power and responsibility their gratification was great and their commendation warm and sincere. Most of them at once felt that here in high administrative position was a man who not only spoke their language and understood their "situation" but, in addition, was a personal friend, always ready to do a favor and generally able to. Here, at last, was a man to whom they could take their troubles, and tell their grievances; who could and would do something about them.

NO WONDER they rejoiced. Many members of Congress dislike and distrust the more important heads of the new government agencies—particularly the advanced New Dealers of the Henderson type. There has been an accumulation of resentment against them in House and Senate. Members have been unable to get audiences when they wanted—or to get satisfaction when they got audience. As a result, there is a considerable feeling in Congress—not altogether without foundation—that things are being run here by men swollen with authority and without understanding.

BUT "JIMMIE" is something else. "Jimmie" is very different. "Jim-

Looking At Life

—By Erich Brandeis

The other night the Cosmopolitan Club of New York gave a party to foreign sailors temporarily stationed here.

There were English and Australian sailors, French and Dutch, Norwegian and Russian.

The girls were mostly members of the Club or relatives and friends of members. They have been all what you call "nice" girls—socially, mentally, morally.

The fellows, well, you know what sailors are. There were some from London's Limehouse district; some were the sons of shepherds from Down Under, some from where the tulips grew before Hitler bespattered the tulip fields of Holland with blood.

Most of the boys couldn't understand most of the girls, but they jabbered away just the same and they danced and laughed and had a good time.

There was beer and ginger ale, cookies and sandwiches, doughnuts and candy.

And, above all, there was friendship and sympathy and the warmth of companionship.

So many people make the mistake of thinking that you must know the other fellow's language to understand him.

I think that it's much better, quite often, not to say your thoughts in words at all.

Words are troublemakers. Wars are brought about by words. Words lead to dissension. Words breed hatred, even dissension.

Words are gossips. They talk behind your back. They lie. They cheat.

Words are flatterers. They fawn on those whom their utterer wants to impress. They lead to conceit. They break morale. They make cowards out of brave men.

But music and dancing, doughnuts and ginger ale, the warm touch of a woman's hand, the magnetism of a handsome fellow's head upon your shoulder—that's universal language that's a song without words, that's real understanding.

I don't think there would ever be a war if the boys of one nation could dance with the girls of another.

When you dance and sing and eat together there's really nothing to fight about.

The Great Game Of Politics

mie" is their friend, "a guy you can really go to and talk." And that at the moment is "Jimmie's" great trouble. His Congressional colleagues have descended upon him very heavily, indeed. They flock to his offices; they grab him for lunch and dinner. "Hello, Jimmie, this is Bill. I've got to see you right away, something important, I'll be right down." So it goes all day long. The pressure never relaxes and the demands on his time daily increase.

FOR Mr. Byrnes it is worse than embarrassing—it is devastating. He cannot shunt these House and Senate members off on secretaries. They won't stand for that; they know him too well; insist on seeing and talking to him personally. He cannot refuse to see and talk to his close personal friends, whom he expects to turn these friends into enemies, as he certainly would if they found they could not get to him when they want. If he tried to erect a protective shield about himself, it would be so out of character that the reaction would be quick and strong. It would mean that all those close friends would be saying, "Well, Jimmie has swelled like the rest of them," and "Well, who would have thought Jimmie would go back on his friends?"

NO ONE can blame Mr. Byrnes from shrinking from that sort of thing. And besides, he wants to see them. Nevertheless, he certainly is in a spot. The man actually has no time to think. With a job concededly of vital importance to the nation and with power second only to that of the President, it is essential for him to have sufficient leisure to plan and to direct. If he is to succeed, he has got to have opportunity for thought, for conference and for administrative work on the broad lines of policy. He cannot possibly do these things adequately if he is overwhelmed with personal interviews on trivial affairs.

IT, OF course, is essential for him, as a public official, to keep on good terms with Congress, and it is essential to him as a man to keep his friends. But his friends ought to grasp his situation and show some consideration. Let up on him. Give him time to think. Don't go to him on unimportant matters and don't take up too much time on important ones. No man in Washington has as many friends as he. No man values his friends more highly. But his friends could ruin him. They do not want to do that, do they?

What's What At A Glance

and he hasn't had that, except in a couple of republics which haven't broken relations or declared war against him.

The dope, then, is that the tony Germans not only didn't approve of Adolf initially but regard him a frost in outright action. He's had a bit of the worst of the genuine fighting and is due for more of it. He's been diplomatically outmaneuvered. And there's the suspicion that he's lost some of his following with the rank-and-file of Germany.

If he blows up—then what? Will follow?

Goering—second to command after Adolf? Goebbels—Nazi publicity-ite? Ribbentrop or Himmler, chief Nazi executioner?

The proposition is that none of 'em will fill the bill, since it's Nazism that's blowing up; hence none of its survivors will be available.

It's the military class that'll have to take over.

Only Goering Belongs

Herr Goering belongs to it. None of the rest of 'em do. Herr Goering's connection with 'em will be a count against him. He was quite a civilized militarist originally. Maybe he can rehabilitate himself, but it's a question, after his Nazi affiliation. It's said he's a sociable beer-drinker and associate in ordinary life. That remains to be demonstrated.

Herr Hitler?

The assumption is that he'll "do the German"—that is to say, bumping himself off suicidally at the opportune moment.

Possibly some of his associates will adopt the same policy. It'll be interesting to watch Benito Mussolini.

He's more of a human being than Adolf is.

The Japs won't be a serious consideration later.

Their military class is big-house, but it's caliber's immaterial.

High School Gives Talent Search Test

Science Scholarships Take Aptitude Test

First tests in a nation-wide science talent search were given Friday at the Senior High school to students contesting for Westinghouse Science Scholarships.

The Science Talent Search is being conducted by the Science clubs of America to discover and help develop scientific talent that will be of value to the nation in war and peace. William A. Margraf was in charge of the three-hour examination given yesterday to seven high school students.

Those taking the science aptitude test were Kathleen Angelillo, Betty Casaccia, Margaret Clement, William Margraf, Richard Scarazzo, James Tilton and Nancy Rugh.

As one of those who took the test said, "They gave us three hours for it, but it was tough—it was really terrific. I never encountered anything like it before."

Forty boys and girls who lead in the preliminary examinations will be given all-expense trips to Washington to take the final examination. Two contestants, one boy and one girl, will be selected by a board of judges, on the basis of written and oral examinations, to receive Westinghouse Science Grand scholarships of $2,400 each ($600 per year for four years). Eight more contestants will receive Westinghouse Science scholarships of $400 ($100 a year for four years) and $300 additional in scholarships will be awarded.

As part of the preliminary examinations, each contestant will submit an essay of about 1,000 words on the subject, "Science's Next Great Step Ahead."

Daily Dozen

(From the Medical Society of the State of Pennsylvania)

Pneumonia used to kill one in every three or four victims. Then came the serums and the sulfonamide drugs.

The death rate now approximates one in every ten cases. Yet pneumonia is still a major problem for physicians.

There are four generally used sulfonamide drugs for pneumonia. Sulfanilamide, sulfapyridine, sulfathiazole and sulfadiazine.

Each pneumonia case calls for special treatment. Some persons are upset by the use of one or the other drugs. Their administration is supervised with the utmost care.

Individual variations render pneumonia treatment very complex. Prompt diagnosis and early treatment favor recovery.

Bury 400 Jap War Victims

Australian Troops Advance Slowly Along Beach Toward Buna

By PAT ROBINSON (U. S. Staff Correspondent)

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA, Dec. 5.—Burying more than 400 Japs they had killed, Australian troops today advanced slowly from Gona along the beach toward Buna, while around the Buna perimeter Americans, supported by air strafing, blasted the Japs from their entrenchments and sank two barges drowning 40 enemy soldiers.

Wounded men back from the front stress how the fighting differs with the terrain.

The Japs know every trick of jungle warfare. Lieut. Dan DeYoung of Washington says that in some places the Nipponese have their machine-gun nests at the foot of trees, but if you rush the nests you'll find they also have snipers with rifles and hand grenades in the trees above the nests.

Said Lieutenant DeYoung: "When we discovered that we took care to first blast them from the trees before working on the nests. They have nests hidden in high Kunai grass and between these nests they have a series of fox-holes, so if you kill a few of a gun crew, they sneak from hole to hole to join the nearest nest."

The Taj Mahal, near Delhi, India, is conceded by many people to be the most beautiful building in the world. It was built during the years 1631 to 1648 by the Emperor Shah Jehan as a tomb for himself and his favorite wife. The building is octagonal, 70 feet high, with sides measuring 130 feet, and a dome giving an additional height of 120 feet. It is built of white marble and rests on a red sandstone platform, from the corners of which rise four minarets. It is surrounded by a magnificent garden.

WAAC Who Went AWOL To Do Strip-Tease Act In Show Provides Problem

(International News Service)
FORT DES MOINES, Ia., Dec. 5.—Army and Women's Army Auxiliary Corps officials at this training post scratched their heads today and wondered what to do with pretty 22-year-old Kathryn Doris Gregory, of Fort Worth, Texas, a WAAC who went AWOL to do a burlesque strip tease.

It was the first such problem in the comparatively short history of the U. S. Army's feminine adjunct and in the opinion of those in authority, called for tactful handling. There was, it was pointed out, the likelihood that some kind of precedent might be involved in the solution of the case.

"We have brought the girl back to the post and will work this thing out," said Harriet Col. John A. Hoag, WAAC commander. He added that Mrs. Gregory, identified as the wife of Forrest S. Gregory, of Texas, had not been discharged nor had she been arrested.

The question of discipline, the commandant announced, has been referred to "our own group" for a decision.

Mrs. Gregory joined the WAACs November 3 and left November 23, camp officers said, to take part in a performance at a Des Moines burlesque theater. Pete Decenzie, stage manager of the house, asserted the girl told him only that she was from Hollywood and had been stranded in Des Moines when a show had closed.

Mrs. Gregory tramped in vaudeville and sang in night clubs since 1933 and on her application for the WAACs described herself as a "blues singer, adagio and professional dancer." She was billed at the burlesque theater as Amber D'Georg and reportedly was a former member of Earl Carroll and George White shows on Broadway.

Special Collection In War Effort To Observe Pearl Harbor Day

Monday, December 7 is Pearl Harbor Day, but it is also "Scrap Collection Day" in Pennsylvania and that means Lawrence County. This time the job is turned over to the school children of the county and on Monday the youngsters will bring in to their schools, as much metal and rubber scraps as they can manage.

President Roosevelt has asked for 10 pounds of scrap per person in the United States. That average means 1,000,000 pounds or 500 tons in Lawrence County. Governor Arthur C. James has put the matter up to the Councils of Defense in Pennsylvania to repeat its record of the recent scrap drive when this state topped every other state in the Union. Pennsylvania collected 780,453 tons of scrap in that drive and Lawrence County contributed about 35,000 tons of that total.

The request of the President and the governor are reasons enough to get out the scrap on Monday, but the more impelling reason is that the steel mills need the scrap to make the implements of war.

If you have school age youngsters in your home, see to it that they get the scrap to the school Monday. If you haven't any school age youngsters, see the neighbors' youngsters and get your scrap in.

Monday is a birthday of a cowardly attack. The United States wants to remember Japan on that birthday with a shower of postcards made of steel and high explosives. Your share is ten pounds.

London Report Asserts Italian Troops Mutiny

Italian Forces Refuse To Go To Front Says Report Heard In London

(International News Service)
LONDON, Dec. 5.—Reports of mutiny along Italian troops in Greece reached London today while the diplomatic writer for the Daily Express said that Mussolini is attempting to exert pressure on the Vatican to "take sides with his falling regime."

The Italian mutiny, according to the Soviet information Bureau, took place in a regiment stationed in the Port of Athens and came about when the men were ordered to go to the front and refused. The soldiers were chained, the dispatch said.

According to the Daily Express writer, Mussolini is using the press, radio, and diplomatic contacts in his efforts to obtain Vatican help. These outlets, the writer said, are protesting against the British raids on Italy.

(The Moscow radio, quoting a broadcast by the Morocco and heard by CBS, said that the admiral commanding the Italian submarine fleet is "supposed" to have resigned in protest to the "penetration of German submarines into the Mediterranean.") It was said that Admiral Erich Raeder of the German Navy has taken over control of the general staff of the Italian submarine fleet.

These men will return home tonight, and will have the customary week's furlough before departing for the reception center at New Cumberland to begin their army duties.

Excess Of Rain And Temperature Seen Last Month

November Proves Slightly Abnormal With Many Queer Quirks

November proved a whimsical month as far as the weather was concerned. Not only was the average temperature 3.3 degrees over the normal per day, but there was also an excess of precipitation of .31 inches during the month. Included in the precipitation was 3.1 inches of snow, more than is generally seen during November, only traces having been noted the year before.

The mean maximum temperature for November was 53.4 degrees, the mean minimum, 33.8 degrees, and the mean or average, 43.6 degrees. The highest temperature was 72 degrees on the 20th and 21st, and the lowest was 19 degrees on the 15th.

The total precipitation for the month was 2.66 inches, the greatest in 24 hours being .71 inches on the 1st, although there were 22 days during the month with .01 inches or more of precipitation. There was only one day during the month that the temperature got below the freezing point. Days with .25 or more inches of precipitation were six, days clear 7, partly cloudy, 10, and cloudy 13.

Federal Grand Jury Will Probe Fraud Charges

Investigation Of Charges In Connection With Naval Depot Construction Is Ordered

(International News Service)
HARRISBURG, Dec. 5.—A federal grand jury investigation was assured today to determine whether "wholesale fraud" was involved in the construction of the $40,000,000 naval supply depot at nearby Mechanicsburg which was turned over to the government on October 1 by its civilian contractors.

Among the witnesses to be called when the grand jury convenes at two p. m. Monday, in the Federal building in Harrisburg, will be U. S. Commissioner Sidney E. Friedman, who charged on Thursday that an attempt was being made in Washington to protect "higher-ups."

Attorney General Francis Biddle termed Friedman an "irresponsible official" and said his accusation was "ridiculous." He added that he had directed Tom C. Clark, chief of the war frauds unit of the Department of Justice, to bring Friedman before the grand jury. "I am going to give Mr. Friedman a chance to put up or shut up," said Biddle. The attorney general sent Clark to Harrisburg to take charge of the case.

Friedman said that all he was interested in was "an honest and full investigation, without any whitewash." He said that "if the grand jury wishes to hear the facts, it doesn't have to subpoena me but just ask me to appear."

High School War Stamp Goal Set

Students And Staff Of High School Aim At 100 Per Cent War Stamp Purchase Monday

Senior High school is aiming at a 100 per cent War Stamp purchase on Monday, December 7, the day which marks the first anniversary of the attack on Pearl Harbor.

It has been suggested to students, teachers, and employees at senior high school that a fitting anniversary contribution towards victory be for each one to buy as many Victory Bonds and stamps as possible on Pearl Harbor Day.

If everyone at senior high school buys at least one ten cent stamp, the sale of stamps alone will amount to over $200.

Total sales of War Bonds and Stamps at senior high for the school year through yesterday have been $14,369.75.

Auto Accident Injuries Fatal

(International News Service)
DOYLESTOWN, Pa., Dec. 5.—Nathan W. Woodbury, 34, one of the managers of the Germantown district of the Bell Telephone company, died in Doylestown hospital today of multiple injuries received Thursday when his station wagon collided head-on with a truck.

Mrs. Mary Smith Watson, 29, a passenger in the station wagon, is in Abington hospital in critical condition and physicians today held little hope for her recovery.

State motor police, who reported neither vehicle had lights on when the crash occurred at 7 a. m., immediately placed Charles Frederick, the truck driver, under arrest on charges of involuntary manslaughter. Woodbury died without regaining consciousness.

OCD NOTES

Activities Of O. C. D. Workers Are Outlined In This Column

IMPORTANT MEETING WEDNESDAY

It is requested that all group leaders, senior wardens and leaders of all other OCD groups of the City Council of Defense meet at city hall, third floor, Wednesday evening, December 9, at 8 o'clock.

This is important. There are several new regulations that all must become familiar as they are permanent. These have to do with traffic regulations and the use and equipment of emergency cars that have to travel during blackouts and alerts.

Another subject will be the "V" home campaign, which we have all read about in the newspapers. This will be discussed thoroughly.

Meet At Cathedral Monday
Your director and co-ordinator have other activities to tell of, so it is absolutely necessary that you be present at this meeting. If possible bring your assistant leader and in the case of wardens, bring your junior wardens.

Another meeting to which you are invited, including your OCD workers, will be held in the Cathedral, Monday morning, December 7, at 9:30 a. m. This meeting is called by Judge Walter Brahm. It is requested that as many OCD workers be present as possible.

TWO SCORE HEAR CHIEF
Two score auxiliary police braved Wednesday night's near zero weather and strong wind to hear Police Chief W. G. McMullen explain fingerprinting.

WANT POLICE-WOMEN
Women who desire to join the auxiliary as police-women should apply immediately to either President Russell Melvin or Police Chief W. G. McMullen.

NICE APPEARING POST
One of the nicest air raid wardens' posts in the city is located in Sampson street, Sixth ward.

WATCHING FOR VANDALS
City police are trying to apprehend the vandals who assertedly damaged air raid warden signs on several properties here.

ARRANGING FOR MASKS
Some motorists who have received the right to operate E cars and fly from them a pennant are now arranging to have masks put on headlights.

MIXING UP PROGRAM
Some post commanders believe that by mixing entertainment with OCD instructive programs is beneficial. The belief is shared by many others.

FEET

Now that people are working such long hours feet will cause trouble. An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

Properly fitted stockings or socks are important. They should be smooth and free from bumps and wrinkles. They should be changed every day.

The feet should be washed frequently with lots of soap and carefully dried. After wiping between the toes, a little powder helps.

If you can afford it, have two or three pairs of shoes and wear them turn about. This will give them time to dry out.

If you wear rubbers, take them off as soon as you can. When you get home from work, change shoes and socks, even if you are only going to sit around the house.

Athlete's foot is just around the corner and will get you if you don't watch out.

CHILD BREAKS ARM

Terry Stockdale, aged 5 years, of 57B Mahoning Court, Newton Falls, O., who is visiting relatives here, was brought to the Jameson Memorial hospital at 9:45 p. m. Friday, having suffered a fracture of the right forearm in a fall on the ice.

FRIEDMAN'S CHARGE HELD "RIDICULOUS"

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, Dec. 5—Attorney General Francis Biddle asserted on Friday that statements by U. S. Commissioner Sidney E. Friedman inferring that U. S. officials were protecting "higher-ups" involved in alleged irregularities at the Mechanicsburg, Pa., naval supply depot, were "ridiculous."

Congress can't run the war. It is too busy with "domestic problems" that can be used to make votes.

Monday will bring to our mind forcefully again the fact that the United States has been at war for one year... one year ago came Monday the Low Yellow Bellied Japs struck without warning... This coming Monday we are striking back with the punch of veterans... A very special meeting has been called for Monday at 9:30 in the Cathedral... it concerns the $5,400,000 Victory Loan Campaign that is in progress here in Lawrence County... There are many types of bonds that you can purchase... If you are interested in helping this campaign please attend this meeting... be prompt and your valuable time will not be wasted.

School teachers are doing a swell job in this war effort but they must not forget that the mothers of their pupils are also working for the war effort... and when a child who has always gone home for lunch starts bringing lunch a few days each week we hope the teachers will understand that it's because the mother is probably rolling handbags or some other war work. Let's all co-operate... at all times.

Trading Continues At Extremely Slow Pace—Some Modest Gains Are Made

(International News Service)
NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—The stock market was mixed and dull today, with minus signs in the majority through most of the session. Trading continued at an extremely slow pace.

Warner Bros. was an active low-priced stock advancing 1/8 to a new 1942 peak of 7.

Others to chalk up modest gains were Texas Co., Sears Roebuck, Johns-Manville, Santa Fe, Eastman Kodak, Union Pacific and Douglas Aircraft.

Fractional declines were incurred by Bethlehem, General Motors, U. S. Rubber, American Telephone, Kennecott, Anaconda, United Aircraft, U. S. Gypsum, International Harvester, Celanese, American Shipbuilding and Goodrich.

The bond list was featured by demand for individual reorganization rail bonds, notably Rock Island general 4s.

The curb market duplicated the mixed and colorless performance of the big board. Modest gains were chalked up by American Cyanamid, "B" Creole Petroleum and American Gas & Electric. Small losses were incurred by United Light & Power and Niles-Bement-Pond.

Senior Class Play On Tuesday Night

Large Cast To Present "Poor Dear Edgar" At Lincoln High School

ELLWOOD CITY, Dec. 5.—The January class of 1943 of the Ellwood high school will present their class play, "Poor Dear Edgar" at the high school auditorium on Tuesday evening, December 8, at 8:15 o'clock.

The play is a three-act comedy of a college "roof," played by Paul Salerno, whose troubles amuse and annoy everyone who comes into contact with him. His ability to be smart and act dumb brings blunders and laughs culminating in success and happiness. The climax is reached when Edgar shows up at a college dance with a circus high diver played by Sally Steed.

Edgar is surrounded by typical college characters. Of course there is the sweetheart, Betty, enacted by Charlotte Fraser, and the pretty Buggins Bates who must have masculine attention, played by Eileen Walls.

The president's 12-year-old daughter, Beatrice, is better known as Cholera for she is the plague of the campus. Marjorie Nelson has this role. Miss Foxpaugh, the dean of women, who does not understand college people or happenings, is portrayed by Betty Pertile. Misses, Chastee, supplied by Jack Gerlach, Aubuchon, and Arabella Smith, a rich alumna from Chicago, complete the feminine cast.

For masculine support, Edgar has a regular "Mr. Chippis" in Dean Thomas, portrayed by Bill Weigle. A perpetual coke consumer is Coky Bradford, played by Jack Gerlach. Ed Coleman is the "daring of the campus and no one knows it quite so well as Ed Coleman, with this part being taken by Stanley Keller, who owns a cheap night club, played by Charles Biscolla, complete by Miss Elizabeth McKnight promises the audience a laugh and a sigh.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gibson, on the second Tuesday in January.
